Proper Sound selected the wrong location for what they want their business to now be. There were residential premises above the shop before Proper Sound opened as a shop/cafe and the permissions granted to them at that time took this into consideration. These residents were assured that whatever opened below would only be a shop/cafe operating within daytime hours, which would be fine for that location. If Proper Sound had at the very beginning applied for permission to be open until 11pm and run as a bar, would this permission had been approved then considering the residents above the premises? If this is approved, I would expect all the residents will have to move out due to the noise affecting their enjoyment of their homes which they lived in before Proper Sound opened. The residential premises will then be empty and hard to fill. There are other premises within the town centre that do not have homes above them that would be suitable for Proper Sound to set up the kind of business that they now want to run.
